USDP UNEASY TOWARDS NEWLY FORMED KARENNI PARTY

The newly formed All National Races Unity and Development Party (ANRUDP - Kayah State) is now the target of the junta-backed Union Solidarity and Development Party (USDP), according to local residents in Kayah State (Karenni). Prior to the ANRUDP's creation and registration, the USDP was the sole party in the Karenni region and was assured of outright victory on election day. The introduction of the ANRUDP has cast doubt on the USDP's presumed dominance since many voters could align themselves with the newly established party. The USDP has in the past practiced forced recruitment of Karenni nationals. Where ethnic locals could not be recruited, Burmans were appointed in their places. The ANRUDP is headed by U Mee-yay Myint and U Mee-yay (alias) Ye Aung. The creation of the party has aroused the interest of many Karenni youth due to the party's non-military status.<sup>6</sup>

MEMBERS OF BAWLAKE DISTRICT SUB-COMMISSION INSPECT PRE-ELECTORAL WORKS

On 30 July, Secretary of the Bawlake District Election Sub-Commission U Chan Myay Saw, and members U Thant Zin and U Khin Saw made field trips to Nanphe Village, Bukwa Village, Shanbaing Ward, and Kayahbaing Ward to meet with members of ward and village sub-commissions, returning officers, and deputy returning officers. They inspected lists of eligible voters and files. They also held discussions about pre-electoral work with members of sub-commissions and answered their queries.<sup>7</sup>

ANALYSIS

The decision by UDP party chairman Phyo Min Thein to resign and withdraw from the election could damage the SPDC's election process. The chairman cited his unhappiness with the manner in which election activities are being implemented and the biased position taken by the UEC as his reason for resigning. It is unclear what the consequence of Phyo Min Thein's resignation will be. But some believe that his party will ultimately pay the price for his abrupt withdrawal. It is also uncertain whether other parties will follow his example or remain tight-lipped.

The recent approval of the All National Races Unity and Development Party (Kayah State) has been welcomed by many Karenni nationals, since it will provide locals with the opportunity to vote for a party that represents and promotes their interests. This scenario could be repeated in the other six ethnic states and influence the outcome of states/regions elections. This may in turn become a major factor in shaping Myanmar's political future.
