Eleven of 12 last contenders have submitted the tenders on 3 June. Two telecom operators who win licenses will be announced on 27 June. ### RULING PARTY MUST STOP THOSE SEEKING U-TURN ON MYANMAR REFORMS - LOWER HOUSE SPEAKER

Parliamentary Speaker, Thura Shwe Mann has urged fellow party members of the ruling Union Solidarity and Development Party (USDP) to oppose those seeking to reverse Myanmar's reforms. The Speaker's comments came in response to questions posed by the Union Daily Paper, a USDP mouthpiece. "The ruling USDP is responsible to stop those seeking a U-turn in Myanmar's political reforms. The multiparty democratic system and market economy prescribed in the Constitution came into sight with the approval of the ruling party and that is supported by the people," said Shwe Mann. Similarly, on his recent visit to the US, the Lower House Speaker also mentioned plans to merge the ruling party and the opposition National League for Democracy party and that such initiatives were crucial in achieving national reconciliation.<sup>11</sup>

USDP PARTY UNDECIDED ON PR SYSTEM, CHARTER CHANGE

A leading member of the ruling Union Solidarity and Development Party (USDP) said that the USDP had not yet decided whether to adopt a proportional representation (PR) system or to amend the Constitution ahead of the 2015 elections. Speaking to a press conference following a three-day meeting of the party's central executive committee in Nay Pyi Taw, USDP vice chairman Htay Oo said: "We haven't made any decisions about whether we will accept the PR system or not and which sections of the Constitution we will amend. central committee. We will amend this for the benefit of the public if necessary.” A public referendum would be required if certain parts of the Constitution are chosen for amendment, he added. In responding to the notion of the USDP and NLD to form a coalition after the 2015 election, Htay Oo told journalists that it was still too early to talk about a future government. He reaffirmed that the party would not backtrack on the country’s reform process and would also guard against the actions of those aiming to derail reform.<sup>12</sup>

RENEWED CLASHES BETWEEN MYANMAR ARMY AND SSA

Renewed clashes have broken out between the Myanmar army and the Shan State Army (SSA), according to a spokesperson of Shan Nationalities League for Democracy (SNLD). Around 100 people took shelter in a Buddhist monastery after the clashes occurred in some areas of Kyaythee Township, northern Shan state on June 20 and 21. This is the most recent of a series of clashes this year between the Myanmar army and the Shan ethnic armed group, displacing civilians and threatening to derail a ceasefire agreement. Locals also said there were more clashes on June 23 in Shiwanwit village-tract of the township and reports of heavy weapons firing by the Myanmar army. Some homes were damaged but there have been no casualties reported so far. SNLD Spokesman Sai Lait said the refugees sent a letter to SSPP/SSA regarding the deaths of two people killed by government troops and that the SNLD will try to resolve the issue with the government’s peace committee.<sup>13</sup>

GOVERNMENT TROOPS AND KIA IN CLASH IN SHAN STATE

Units from the Burma Army and the Kachin Independence Army (KIA) clashed again on 27 June (Thursday), as fighting in the Pang sai (Kyukok) area of northern Shan state carried over for the second straight day.

The fighting broke out near Seng Htu Hkyet (Jang H pang Kawng) said Zau Seng, a commander from the Pang sai-based 5th Section unit of the Mungshawa Hpyen Hpung (MHH or People’s Army in Kachin), a militia affiliated with the KIA’s civilian wing the Kachin Independence Organization (KIO). The MHH are a civilian force made up of local Kachin volunteers who frequently fight alongside regular KIA forces.

The latest clashes involved troops from the Burma Army’s Light Infantry Battalion (LIB) No. 507 and a combined group of troops from KIA Battalion 36 and their allies with the 5th Section of the MHH battalion, according to Zau Seng. “The fighting began after a column of Burmese troops intruded into Seng Htu Hkyet where we have been planning to set up our base,” said Zau Seng. It is not yet known whether there were any casualties from either side.

About a quarter of the KIO’s territory is located in Kachin inhabited areas of northern Shan state, a fact often neglected in much of the news coverage of conflict. A long section of territory controlled by the KIO in Shan state lies along the route of the Shwe pipeline project’s twin oil and natural gas pipelines which are supposed to be finished very soon. Although the pipeline project may not be the primary reason behind the army’s offensive against the KIO, many observers believe that it has certainly fuelled the conflict.<sup>14</sup>

DAIALOGUE FOR CHIN COMMUNITY IN CHIN STATE

A community development dialogue programme was conducted by the Network for Chin Community Development (NCCD) in Teddim Township, between 21 and 22 June 2013 in Nginte village and attended by locals from other 8 villages. The right to own land and its management, the on-going national reconciliation peace process were discussed in the dialogue programme, said Salai Sitmon, from the NCCD. He also added that the discussions were focused on the strong and weak points of the development program being carried out between the local people and the NCCD.

The Network for Chin Community Development (NCCD) was founded in 1995 to empower the disenfranchised and exploited people of Chin State. The organization works in conjunction with other Chin civil society organizations to promote and improve the lives of local people through development. Similar programmes are also being scheduled for villages and townships in southern and central Chin State.<sup>15</sup>

ANALYSIS

President Thein Sein highlighted that political, economic and social stability are key requisites in the successful implementation of the current democratic reforms in the country. In his address to the Planning Commission, he has emphasized the importance in ending decades of fighting with ethnic armed groups and that his government is keen to implement a nation-wide ceasefire agreement in the near future. The President has repeatedly affirmed his commitment in achieving national reconciliation; though the on-going clashes between the Burmese Army and ethnic armed groups in both the Kachin and Shan States have cast suspicion on the government's commitment to the peace process. The clashes raise questions not only on the successful holding of a nation-wide ceasefire agreement but more importantly if the President can control the military (Tatmadaw).
